VOL. V—NO. 1[illegible]. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MAY 10, 1856. PRICE TWO CENTS

[illegible] Hon. Hiram Walbridge, Capt. Josiah Rynders, Hon. Gilbert Dean, Major Heiss.

Absent.

Hon. Lewis Cass, Hon. John A. Quitman, Hon. John P. Benjamin, Hon. Robt. Toombs, Hon. John B. Weller, Hon. Geo. W. Peck, Hon. S. A. Douglas, Hon. Daniel S. Dickies, A. A. Phillips, Col. Geo. W. Saunders, Thos. B. Van Buren.

Previous to commencing proceedings, the audience was regaled with some very good music by a musical band, which continued playing until the ball was called to order. At 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Alderman CLANCY, of the Sixth Ward, who nominated for who was elected unanimously, and with applause, as was a large number of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries.

The audience was now in the best of humor, and when the President announced Captain RYNDERS as about to present a series of resolutions, they gave him a hearty cheer.

The Captain came forward and said:

Gentlemen: I promise you we are all gentlemen—I have been requested to introduce a series of resolutions. And I do so with the greater pleasure, because they contain some information concerning Gen. WALKER that you are not all familiar with, and which every man should know. (Applause.) But I am not as old as I was six minutes ago (Col. GEORGE B. HALL having removed my spectacles from my pocket). I will call upon my young friend, GARRIT SMITH, to read them. (Applause.)

Mr. SMITH took the resolutions, and said they were of great importance. As he desired they should be endorsed by every person present, he wished, if he should not speak loud enough for all to hear, they would signify it. He then read in a loud tone the following

PROPOSITIONS.

1. That it is the duty of our Government to make immediate recognition of the republic of Nicaragua. [Applause.]

2. That this Government, in its laws and its treaties, should declare the perfect freedom of commerce and colonization—in other words, the right of every citizen to go with his ships and his property, including his rifle, to any nation whatsoever that is willing to receive him. [Applause.]

3. That notice of the abrogation of that joint production of stupidity and corruption, the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, should be immediately given. [Applause.]

4. That full and ample indemnity for the robbery and massacre at Panama should be demanded and taken. [Applause.]

They were received with unbounded applause, and adopted unanimously.

The band then finished the "Star Spangled Banner."

Capt. RYNDERS then asked the audience to allow him to introduce Gen. HIRAM WALKER, adding that they all knew him as well as he did. [Cheers.]

GEN. WALKER'S SPEECH.

FELLOW-CITIZENS AND COUNTRYMEN: Governments, like individuals, in cases of public emergency, are frequently called upon to promptly act and decide, leaving the consequence of that decision to the vicissitudes of life, and the judgment of the men who shall come after them. Fortunately these occasions occur only at intervals, to test the sagacity and firmness of those to whom the responsibility has been delegated.

The judicious exercise of this authority either makes or mars the usefulness and character of those who have to render the decision.

In a Government that exists only by the will of the people, it should always be grateful to the former to know that their action, if responsive to the popular heart, will be sustained by those who called them into political existence.

Yet, as it is dangerous to err, where responsibility is divided, these counsels should be given only after a full knowledge of all the facts, and a just estimate of the consequences involved.

Thoroughly impressed with these convictions, I have cheerfully come to respond to your invitation, and to impart such information as convinces me that the existing Government of Nicaragua should be promptly recognized by the Administration of our General Government.

We owe it to the people of that State—we owe it to the cause of Republican Government, wherever it exists.

While the immediate object of our meeting is to express our sympathy with the cause of liberty in Nicaragua, and to aid and encourage the struggling patriots under General WILLIAM WALKER, I shall endeavor to extend the range of my vision to the actual condition of affairs in Central America—a full knowledge of its commercial relations to our expanding trade and commerce, its political affinities with foreign and European Governments, its frequent and volcanic social convulsions, its great resources for development and improvement, and the important relation it holds between us and our countrymen on the Pacific.

In this examination it will be found that political events deeply affecting the present and future interests of this great commercial metropolis, and of the whole Union, have recently given an impetus to our relations with Central America in no degree subordinate to any of the grave matters of Government policy which have engaged, at different periods, the attention of the people of this country, within the last quarter of a century.

Ten years ago, geographically and politically considered, that portion of this continent was as foreign to us as the interior of Africa.

As a youthful nation, we had been busy in developing the great industrial interests of our country, and extending our commercial power across the Atlantic, and around the stormy capes of South America and Africa, to the Indian Seas.

The restless, indomitable, energetic spirit of our people had already crossed the Rocky Mountains, and on their western slope vigorous communities were rapidly assuming political and commercial importance.

The treaty of Washington, in 1842, had terminated the undivided joint occupancy of Oregon. Texas, in 1845, had entered the Confederacy. The war with Mexico followed, and by the treaty of 1848 with that country, our line of frontier extended on the Pacific from the 49th deg. to the 31st deg. 50 min., or the southern limits of Upper California.

These events at once changed our relations with Central America, which now occupies the attention of our people, and awakens sentiments of humanity and sympathy for the struggling, devoted and gallant band of our countrymen now contending for the principles of public liberty, against the degraded and cruel tyranny of the degenerate races that now hold the greater portion of that country.

Central America is situated north of the Isthmus, connecting North and South America, having Mexico for its northern boundary, New-Granada for its southern, the Pacific on the west and the Carribean Sea on the east.

It is located between the 8th and 18th parallels of north latitude, 900 miles long, with a varying breadth of from 60 to 400 miles, having an area of 200,000 square miles, consisting of Guatemala, with a surface of 28,000 square miles; San Salvador, of 13,000; Honduras, of 72,000; Costa Rica, of 43,000; Mosquito, of 22,000, and Nicaragua, of 48,000. The total population exceeds 2,064,000, while that of Nicaragua alone is something over a quarter of a million.

The coasts of Central America are indented with deep and capacious gulfs, affording excellent ports both on the Atlantic and Pacific shores. Its harbors and navigable rivers are among its great advantages, and in this respect it is immeasurably superior to Mexico. The San Juan is the outlet of the great lakes, and was until recently an important line of travel between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The most noted islands of Central America are those on the north coast of Honduras, including Bustan, Benace, Utila, now in actual possession of Great Britain, and erected into what is known as the British Bay Colony. Those off the Mosquito coast, the Archipelago of Chiriqui, in the Carribean Sea, and those of the Gulfs of Nicaragua and Fonesca on the south coast.

First discovered and explored by Europeans three hundred and thirty years ago, when Central America was under the dominion of Spain, it was included in the Captain-Generalcy of Guatemala. In 1821 it was proclaimed an independent State, and formed a union with the Republic of Mexico. In 1823 it formed a separate Government, and eventually a Confederation of five States. The Mosquito Territory, under the Spanish dominion, was legally a part of Honduras and Nicaragua. In 1846 the Confederation was dissolved, and each became an independent State.

Political jealousy and the depraved ignorance and depraved character of the heterogeneous population of Indians, whites, negroes and sadinos, rendered them incapable of forming any stable government under which, as a people, the elements of thrift and prosperity could be put into successful operation.

The country is rich in minerals, gold and silver, and produces all the varied staples of the tropics. On the highlands all the grains and fruits of the temperate zone may be cultivated. The warmer regions produce, in great abundance, Indian corn, sugar cane, banana, mandioca, every tropical fruit, sweet potatoes, indigo, cochineal and our great staples, tobacco and cotton.

Its forests abound in mahogany, pimento, sarsaparilla, vanilla, with various gums, logwood and other valuable materials.

This country is now the direct line of trade between our Atlantic and Pacific possessions, and till recently was the portage for the commerce of Europe and Eastern Asia. By the diminished distance presented from the geographical position of Central America, compared with the circuitous and dangerous route around the Cape of Good Hope, the distance from New-York to Canton will be reduced from 17,100 miles to 12,600. The United States now ing undisturbed and safe transit for her citizens and merchandise through these latitudes, would soon exclude all rivalry in the emoluments and profits of Asiatic trade.

I have been thus particular in presenting some of the elements of prosperity and greatness with which this region abounds—an extended and healthy country, embracing every variety of soil, surface and production, with which, by force of circumstances, the citizens of our Union have been brought into first the contact, and in whom, therefore, we have, necessarily, a deep and abiding interest. Not only indirect in securing the extension of the principles of public liberty, but direct, as the great highway we employ in our regular intercourse with [illegible] and over which a stream of [illegible] for the lawful pursuits [illegible] commerce, and constantly pouring [illegible] commanding importance of our [illegible] has extended the vision of our [illegible] to the absolute necessity of a great inter-[illegible] adequate to the growing [illegible] trade and commerce.

Is there a citizen of this great commercial emporium; is there a citizen of any of these sovereign American States, who will say that it is to the interest of this Republic that the miserable, vacillating, inefficient, disorganizing state of things existing in Central America, shall continue, or that it shall, in violation of the Monroe doctrine of 1823, pass as a dependency of Great Britain, or to that of the alliance known as the Western Powers?

Are we prepared and willing to take a step backward? Are we prepared to lower the flag of the Union, now proudly floating over a commerce of five and a half millions, nearly half a million of tons greater that that nation once the mistress of the ocean and of the trade of the world? Are we prepared to see our interests sacrificed to the cupidity and undermining policy of Great Britain, first in dissembling, equivocating, and finally abrogating the solemn treaty of 1850, by insisting on a continuance of sovereignty under the disguised form of a Mosquito Royalty?

Look at the condition of affairs in Central America and determine whether this state of things ought to exist; familiarize your mind with the furious and bestial broils which have drenched that land in blood, and endangered the lives of many of our own citizens engaged in a transit through that distracted and unhappy country.

Witness the rivalry of CHAMORRO and CASTILLON, the former representing the legitimists and despots, the latter the cause of public liberty, and realize that while these factions held omnipotent sway, the lives and commerce of thousands of our countrymen were in jeopardy.

Let it not be forgotten that the brave and intrepid General WALKER only proceeded to Nicaragua after the most pressing solicitations, when he was assured that he might contribute in a great degree to restore order and tranquillity to that then afflicted country.

Let it also be remembered that the present actual Government of Nicaragua is based upon no violent and intrusive spirit on the part of General WALKER and his followers. At the invitation of CASTILLON, WALKER came and united himself with the native forces of the country, to establish public order and to tranquil the social and political condition of that State.

The adjacent State of Costa Rica, under British influence, is secretely sustained by the direct power of the British Ministry, as the recent correspondence intercepted by Gen. WALKER, between the English and Costa Rican Governments, abundantly establishes. Yes, it is to be remembered that the British Minister, Lord CLARENDON, has placed arms in the hands of the Costa Ricans; and doubtless other means have also been employed to destroy the actual existing Government of Nicaragua.

By the telegraphic advices from Washington this morning, we are advised of the interference of the British Captain GARNEYSON, from the frigate Burgdies, forbidding all passengers destined for Nicaragua to leave their ship, and that the British force forbade the American passengers who came down the river, from communicating with the shore at San Juan, and that the British boats exercised a close surveillance over all Americans while there. If this important intelligence be true, it is not simply the cause of Nicaragua which we are to defend. It is the liberty of the American citizen, shielded by our own flag in the lawful pursuits of commerce, that imperiously demands immediate investigation and reparation. Nicaragua should not only be recognized; but Congress, as the law-making power, should promptly declare to the world the American doctrine, that no European nation will be permitted to interfere in the political administration of any portion of the Western Continents.

It is true, my fellow-citizens, that the sense of our people should be so unequivocally enunciated upon these points that thereafter there shall be no room for indecision or doubt.

The nature of our institutions is expansive—a new system, resting upon human rights, vindicated as they are by the sublime teachings of Christianity. In this confederated family we invite the downtrodden, the oppressed; we open the door to their political regeneration. In doing so we strengthen the mighty fabric by adding new columns to the structure. Free trade, extension of our republican systems, are the great elements which are destined to advance the interests and prosperity of our people.

This great City holds a position which gives a commanding influence not only over the commerce of this Union and of the continent, but which is also felt throughout the world. On our own continent, however, in the line of her trade, while the channel of her commerce is still flowing through Nicaragua, she is intercepted and detained, not unfrequently robbed, and her children slain.

Is she to stand by and hesitate in raising her voice in the Confederacy, when that voice may be potent in putting an end to the agitations and disorders of the infant State of Nicaragua?

This large assemblage of the patriotic sons of New-York, gathered to sympathize with the struggling patriots of Nicaragua, indicate clearly the public sympathy on this point, and I feel that I but echo that sentiment from this spot, when I say that the actual Government of Nicaragua, the Walker-Rivas Government, should be recognized by our Government, and that the United States should interfere by all the force at its command, to put an end to the intrusive, insidious proceedings of Great Britain, in any attempt, whether by Mosquito, Belize, or other claims, to establish permanent occupancy on that portion of this Continent—not only because it is in violation of our policy, announced by our Chief Executive a third of a century ago, but as tending to interrupt and menace our commercial intercourse with the Pacific, and perhaps endanger those distant States and Territories of our Federal Union.

The General was often interrupted during his speech by applause, and when he had concluded the audience gave him three cheers.

The President now introduced Capt. RYNDERS, who had, he believed, something to say.

While the Captain was taking off his coat, preparatory to making his speech, the band, by some strange but nevertheless amusing mistake, commenced playing a melancholy and dirge-like air.

Some of the audience noticed the peculiarity of the music and began to laugh.

The Captain looked, for a moment, as melancholy as the music, but, recovering himself, he said: "You won't bury me yet, I'll bet."

Some one gave the leader a hint of his mistake, and he immediately struck up "Yankee Doodle" in double quick time. The audience applauded, and the Captain said "That was more like it."

CAPT. RYNDERS' SPEECH, WITH INTERRUPTIONS.

When the band had Yankee-Doodled twice, the Captain arose and was about to open his mouth, when some one handed him a resolution expressing sympathy for Col. GEORGE B. HALL and his associates, in consequence of the difficulties and delays they had been obliged to encounter during their efforts to aid Gen. WALKER. The Captain said he would have it read, and if he liked it he would say so, and if not, why, not.

Mr. SMITH read it, as follows:

Resolved, That this meeting unanimously extend their warmest sympathies to Col. GEORGE B. HALL and his gallant associates, for the annoyance and detention which for months they have been unnecessarily subjected to in their laudable desire to embark for Central America for the purpose of lending a helping hand in the great work of giving to that beautiful country the benefit of good government and free and enlightened institutions; and we trust that the time is not far distant when American citizens shall have the right to emigrate when and where they please.

Both the audience and the Captain indorsed it warmly. He could say, with a full knowledge of its truth, that Col. GEORGE B. HALL had done all in his power to aid Gen. WALKER. Proceeding with his speech, he said it was expected that he would say something with reference to the object for which the meeting had been convened.

Gen. WALKER, he said, had his deepest sympathy and highest respect. He had gone to Nicaragua and remained there, and acted there, because he had been desired to do so by the people of Nicaragua. [Applause.] The gentleman who had preceded him had spoken of an unwritten law. He begged to differ with him slightly concerning that law. It was true it was not written on parchment, but it was written in blood in the heart of every true American. [Great applause.] And all the Minie rifles made by the mechanics of Great Britain could not shed blood enough to erase it. [Hip-hip hurrah.]

A VOICE—That's so. Go in Captain.

THE CAPTAIN, (continuing)—Democratic principles would, he was sure, be established in Nicaragua, and then the citizen could stand up and say he was a man. [Cheers.] It had been said that Gen. WALKER was a filibuster. Now who was it that was the loudest in making that charge against him. It was England. And what was England? Why the greatest filibuster of all nations. [Applause.] Where did she get her possessions? She says she acquired them. Where did she get them?

A VOICE—By her bravery.

CAPT. RYNDERS—If you call stealing "bravery," then it was by bravery. But if that is your definition of the term, I advise the man who is standing next to you to look out for his pocket. [Great applause.]

The Captain continued—He would not willingly say a wrong word of any country. The English were a brave people, and he liked them for it. But General WALKER was not a filibuster in the true sense of the term. He was a Nicaraguan citizen of that country, and called by the people to aid them in establishing a Republican Government. Gen. WALKER was a Republican by nature, and he understood the cause. [Applause.] If such conduct as that was filibustering then write him down a filibuster. [Applause.] The conduct of our Government in the matter had been called in question. At one time he was disposed to believe the Government was wrong, but since then he had heard the words of a distinguished Judge, to the effect that our Government had a high and distinguished position among the nations of the earth, and therefore it was necessary to be cautious, for it would be a sad thing for such a Government to commit an act of bad faith. He would not doubt whether it was right or not; he did not pretend to understand all Governments.

A VOICE—Particularly when there is a MANNY at its head.

ANOTHER VOICE—You are out of order. You are no gentleman or you would not interrupt the meeting.

CAPTAIN RYNDERS—I am for freedom of speech, and if that Gentleman has anything to say, let him come upon the platform and say it like a man.

A VOICE—No he won't—put the s— of a b— out.

ANOTHER VOICE—Three cheers for MANNY.

There were a few feeble cheers in response.

STILL ANOTHER VOICE—"Three groans for MANNY." And three awful groans came up from the very stomachs of the audience.

AND YET ANOTHER VOICE cried, "It's a d——d shame; we don't want any paplats here. The groaners ought to be put out."

ONE OF THE GROANERS cried aloud, "Who'll put us out?"

ONE OF THE FORMER VOICES answered and said, "We'll show you."

A GROANER responded, "Try it on, bubby."

SEVERAL VOICES—"Go in—pitch into them—hustle them out."

And they did go in. All the timid men jumped upon the platform and tables, put their cowhides irreverently upon the reporters' notes, and crowded around the Captain for protection, while he looked on coolly and calmly upon the turmoil below. The Captain had witnessed many worse conflicts in old Tammany, and he was not dismayed. While the fight was going on miscellaneously, Alderman CLANCY cried aloud for music. Some thought he wanted to have the fight go on regularly—keeping time with some martial air, as they do in the Bowery; but he really resorted to the music as a last resort, for peace.

The band struck up—

"Old Aunt Sally,"

and immediately there was a calm, which proved conclusively that SHAKESPEARE was right when he said:

"Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast."

When peace had been restored, the Captain proceeded to state what he was about to say when the row began. He acknowledged the right of any man, in a public meeting, to either favor or dissent from what was said, but it should always be done in a gentlemanly way. He was about to say that whatever the course of this Government had been, he believed (in fact, he had that in his breeches-pocket which warranted him in saying) that Gen. WALKER's Government would soon be recognized by ours. It could easily do so, for Gen. WALKER had done nothing that would prevent any true man from voting for him if he were to run for President of the United States.

ONE OF THOSE VOICES—Now Captain, don't for God's sake mention President PIERCE in that connection.

A VOICE FULL OF INDIGNATION—Put him out. He's a blackguard.

A QUIETER VOICE—(Recognized as that of one of the groaners)—No you won't.

And they didn't.

CAPT. RYNDERS—Gentlemen, it is a most annoying thing, when a man is endeavoring to express his ideas, to have an impertinent fellow on the right, and a jackass on the left, interrupting,—and the Committee on Invitations either pulling his coat tails or trying to pick his pocket—he'd be d——d if he knew which. Nevertheless, he had said all he wished to say, and he would not have said so much if they had behaved themselves. So now he would take his seat.

Which he did amid applause.

REMARKS OF MR. MYERS.

Mr. MYERS was then introduced. He said that every man who has an intellect and a good right arm, will use that intellect and good right arm to spread the noble cause of freedom. Let party go to the wind, and let this be regarded as the mighty upheaving of honest men's hearts to extend to others the noble liberty which the fathers of this country had shed their blood to gain. And shall this noble feeling be cramped or squelched? Shall we be cramped on our own continent by a nation whose flag we have twice trampled in the dust? [Cries of "no," "no." "That's the grist for our mill."] The speaker then proceeded to vindicate the claims of Gen. WALKER as a true Republican, and to enforce the duty of all true Americans to encourage him in the noble mission he has undertaken in Central America.

SPEECH OF MR. ROSS—MATERIAL AID ASKED FOR.

Mr. WILLIAM J. ROSS was then introduced by the Chairman, as "the young and enthusiastic friend of Young America." He said that he was somewhat young, to be sure, and was perhaps enthusiastic in the cause of Young America, by which he meant a progressive America. This was not the time for the indulgence of mere verbiage, and he was happy to be enabled to second the practical remarks of the gentleman who had preceded him, by offering an eminently practical resolution. He then read the following:

Whereas, By the resolutions already adopted by this meeting, it is apparent that Gen. WM. WALKER and his brave army in Nicaragua are in need of prompt and liberal material aid. Therefore

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed by this meeting, with full powers to collect and receive subscriptions and contributions of any kind—whether in money, provisions and clothing, or arms and ammunition, for the immediate aid and relief of Gen. WM. WALKER and his suffering army.

The resolution was then put to the meeting and unanimously adopted.

The Chairman was then authorized to appoint the Committee provided for in the resolution, and he did so by proposing the following named gentlemen as a Committee of Material Aid:

Moses S. Beach, Elijah F. Purdy, Warren Leland, J. B. Taylor, Richard B. Connally, John Clancy, Gideon J. Tucker, H. N. Wild, Major Bartlett, Capt. Whitcomb, Samuel Brevoort, George Wilkes, Wm. Williamson, Peter R. Steele, A. C. Lawrence.

The names proposed were accepted by the meeting; after which Mr. ROSS continued his remarks. He said the peace just concluded in Europe contained the germs of a coalition against the Republic of the United United States. The strength and power of the coalesced and reactionary Powers of Europe was great, and their insidious influence was already at work even in this country. It was the duty of all lovers of human Freedom to crush out this influence, and assist by word and deed the efforts of our fellow-men to attain these privileges which we enjoy. He instanced the interference of the British frigate Burgdies, in the movements of the American steamship Orizaba, and asked, and inquired, whether the American people would submit to such insults from a power, against which they had already twice struggled, and successfully too, in maintenance of their rights. He next reviewed the history of Nicaragua and the internal dissensions by which it had been so long crippled. General WALKER had been accepted by the invitation of the Democrats of Nicaragua to aid them in casting off the rule of a despot, did no more nor less than Gen. LAFAYETTE when he gave his services in aid of our forefathers in their struggle for independence of foreign rule. [Cries of "that's so," "that's so."] If General WALKER be unworthy of our sympathy and aid, then was General LAFAYETTE unworthy of our admiration. WALKER is now fighting for the same principle for which LAFAYETTE fought—the rights and liberties of men. In conclusion he hoped that the men of New-York would not be backward in rendering aid, efficient and practicable, to the apostle of liberty in Central America, their countryman Gen. WM. WALKER!

Mr. ROSS resumed his seat amid great applause.

WHAT ALDERMAN CLANCY HOPES.

Alderman JOHN CLANCY was then introduced. He said that the spread of republican principles was dear to every American, and he was sure that every true man must accord in the sentiments uttered by the eloquent speakers who had preceded him. He did not wish to repeat what had already been said, but he would read for them a speech delivered by Gen. WALKER to his troops when the news reached Granada of the defeat of his forces at Santa Rosa, in consequence of the treachery of Sonnemaeker, Mr. CLANCY then read the speech alluded to, and concluded by saying that a previous speaker had expressed the hope that he would one day have the satisfaction of shaking Gen. WALKER by the hand when he landed in New-York, as an American Senator for the State of Nicaragua. Now, for his part, he hoped Gen. WALKER would not land in New-York as a Senator from Nicaragua. He hoped that when he came he would come by way of Mexico, leaving his mark behind. [Loud cheers.]

SPEECH OF HORATIO N. WILD—OFFER OF MATERIAL AID.

HORATIO N. WILD was then called for. He answered the summons by saying that the present was the time for action—serious and deliberate. Something practicable was needed, and he was ready to do his share. He had in his possession 500 guns, and ammunition to match, which he would tender in aid of Nicaragua and Gen. WM. WALKER. [Enthusiastic applause.] The guns were ready, and many persons present knew where they were, but for his part he was not going to enlighten the Government of their whereabouts. He hoped every man, no matter what his politics, would come forward and aid in the glorious movement. There were none so poor that could not afford some assistance—even a dime would aid in the good work—and he was quite sure that in less than six months those so contributing would say, "Thank God, I aided towards the commencement of this glorious, this noble enterprise." [Cheers.]

MORE FIRST HONOR.

The President of the meeting then read the following dispatch from ALEX. C. MORTON, Esq.

WASHINGTON, Friday, May 2, 1856.

To the Chairman of the Meeting, Academy of Music:

I think I may with the utmost degree of confidence assure you that the recognition by our Government of the Nicaragua is now a settled fact, and that the day is not far distant when the colors of the "Sunbeams of the Blue Velamen," blended with those of our "starry flag," will float and wave in glorious triumph over Central America. ALEX. C. MORTON.

THE ADJOURNMENT.

A motion to adjourn was then made. Capt. RYNDERS moved to, and by moving that this meeting now adjourn, subject to the call of the Committee. The Captain added that the ball must be kept rolling—the movement must not die. He wanted to see other and even larger meetings in aid of the good cause.

The motion of the Captain was accepted, and the meeting then adjourned, with three cheers for Nicaragua and General WILLIAM WALKER.

THE CROWD—ANOTHER MEETING.

The throng was so great that many were unable to gain admittance in the Hall, so that another meeting was organized outside the building, at which several addresses were made, and great enthusiasm prevailed.

Academy of Music.

BELLINI's favorite opera of "Norma" was given on Wednesday night to a fair house, considering the weather. The only novelties in the cast were Miss HENRIETTA BEHRENS, who made her début as Adalgisa, and Signor COLLETTI, who sustained the rôle of Orovist. Miss BEHRENS is well known to our concert-goers. She has grown up in our midst, and, by untiring industry and unflagging ambition, has won a place in the public esteem. There is a great difference, however, between singing in a concert-room and performing the same agreeable operation on the stage. The additional effort required for the latter arena developes defects which might otherwise remain unnoticed. Many charming vocalists have utterly failed when they essayed the task of imparting musical truth on the large scale required on the lyric stage. Miss BEHRENS was not so unfortunate. She was warmly encouraged by the audience, and received the honor of a call. She has the right to consider her début a success, and we certainly shall not dim the lustre of the occasion by any dispute on the subject. We are sure, however, that Miss BEHRENS can do better than she did as Adalgisa, and we trust to her ambition to profit by the opportunity she now enjoys of correcting many little defects. Foremost amongst them is a very unpleasant tendency to sing nasally,—a blemish so fatal that if it be not at once corrected it will destroy her prospects forever. Her voice is not powerful, and all the nasalities in the world will not add to its strength. Miss BEHRENS appears also to have studied vocal elegancies and embellishment rather than the equalization of the registers. She comes out strong in some of her notes, and is disgraceefully tranquil in others. All these things can be remedied with proper effort, and as we said before we trust Miss BEHRENS will profit by her present opportunity.

COLLETTI was mild and the audience resigned. LA GRANGE was superb. We doubt if she has ever sung better than in the two first acts of this opera.

Last night VERDI's "Il Trovatore" was again repeated, and as usual attracted a brilliant audience. Signor BRIGNOLI returned to his old rôle of Maurice, and for the first time lately sang above a whisper. Mme. LA GRANGE was, of course, admirable. When is this infallible artist otherwise? Mme. D'ORNY undertook the arduous rôle of the gipsy Azucena, for the first time, and making allowance for the necessary drawbacks—such as nervousness, insufficient study, &c., was acceptable. We have to suffer a great deal for this opera, especially in a comic point of view. A little more or less can't make any difference.

To-night (Saturday) WEBER's romantic of opera of "Der Freischutz" will be given in German, Mme. LA GRANGE and Mme. LUCHSENIUS in the principal rôles. This opera has been carefully rehearsed, and will, we expect, be given in a very satisfactory way. A new incantation scene has been painted by Signor ALLEGRI. Altogether the programme is greatly attractive.

Signora VESTVALI, (who has returned from Mexico,) has been engaged, and will appear on Monday next, as Arsace, in "Semeramide".

NEW-YORK CITY.

Colored School Fair.

The pupils of the Colored Girl's Grammar School, No. 1, in Mulberry-street, near Grand, gave a public reception yesterday, which was largely attended by strangers in town to attend the anniversaries. The new organ of the school was used under the direction of Professor OVINGTON, and some very fine solos, duetos and choruses were given by the girls. A large collection of needlework, artificial flowers, and painting were collected on the tables in the different rooms. Pertinent addresses were made by Messrs. RANDALL, MCELLIGOTT and others. The reception was followed by a fair in the evening, for the sale of fancy articles, the proceeds to be applied to the purchase of the organ spoken of above. The Fair will be continued from 10 o'clock A. M., this day and evening, and on Monday next from 3 P. M., closing with a concert in the evening, at which the children of the Colored Orphan Asylum will be present.

Effects of the Gale.

The gale from the northeast of the past day or two was very severe on the sound, so much so, that the steamers of the Boston lines, which left here on Thursday evening last, came to anchor in Cow Bay, near Sands' Point, where they remained till 8 o'clock next morning. Some of the smaller steamers running to intermediate points, laid over at their piers. The Elm City, for New-Haven, being a substantial vessel, went through; but not without sustaining damage. The bulk heads of her gang-ways were stove by the seas that washed over her forward deck and were so massive as to fill her gang-ways two feet deep.

Backed Down.

Yesterday, at about 4 P. M., a fine horse attached to an express wagon, was backed overboard from Pier No. 11, North River, by some person, in the attempt to make room to pass; but by the timely and strenuous exertions of those present, both horse and wagon were soon brought out safe. The horse was valued at $250.

The Case of the Northern Light.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—MAY 9.

Before Hon. Judge Betts.

The United States vs. Edward Tinklepaugh, Joseph Fowler, and Joseph L. Watts.—This case commenced on Thursday morning. Defendants are charged with obstructing the officers of the United States while in the discharge of their duty. For the Government Mr. Joachimsen, and for the accused Mr. Horace F. Clark and Francis B. Cutting appeared. The accused were all in Court.

The case was opened by the Assistant United States District-Attorney, who proceeded to examine his witnesses. He called Benjamin J. Ryer, who being sworn, testified to no facts other than have already appeared in the TIMES, that he, being a United States Marshal, boarded the Northern Light, and saw the Chief Engineer, Mr. Fowler, and forbade him from assisting the vessel to leave. Mr. Fowler replied that he would take his instructions from the Captain, and I told him he would abide the consequences; Capt. Tinklepaugh soon after came on board, and I showed him the writ; I think he took it in his hand, but am not positive; Mr. White made his appearance soon after, and wanted to know what was the difficulty; showed him the process, when he spoke of the hardness of the proceeding; accompanied him to the Captain's room; I remained in the room till I heard that the vessel was going; I went to the hurricane deck, where I saw Capt. Tinklepaugh giving orders to cast off the lines; she got under way; I observed the cutter Washington coming around the point at Castle Garden in tow of a steamboat; we had got pretty well down towards the Battery, when there was a gun fired from the cutter; the Captain said "Let the vessel go;" the cutter came up and the Northern Light was boarded by an officer.

This witness was cross-examined at considerable length but no new facts were elicited.

Mr. Hunter, also a Marshal, corroborated much of the testimony of the previous witness. Mr. White came down first; White came to me and said he was the Captain's office; I made the arrest; passed on to the quarter-deck at Castle Garden a half hour before she left; Clark got aboard a small boat; Mr. White spoke to me; when she left at 4½ o'clock; White was on the dock; vessel got away at 4½ o'clock; White ran on the dock; vessel had got out of her gun; had no conversation with Captain; said if they would give me half an hour I would satisfy them that I was in communication on board; heard H. F. Clark said he would get the writ; heard Mr. White [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Friday, May 2, 1856.

To the Chairman of the Meeting, Academy of Music:

I think I may with the utmost degree of confidence assure you that the recognition by our Government of the Nicaragua is now a settled fact, and that the day is not far distant when the colors of the "Sunbeams of the Blue Velamen," blended with those of our "starry flag," will float and wave in glorious triumph over Central America. ALEX. C. MORTON.

THE ADJOURNMENT.

A motion to adjourn was then made. Capt. RYNDERS moved to, and by moving that this meeting now adjourn, subject to the call of the Committee. The Captain added that the ball must be kept rolling—the movement must not die. He wanted to see other and even larger meetings in aid of the good cause.

The motion of the Captain was accepted, and the meeting then adjourned, with three cheers for Nicaragua and General WILLIAM WALKER.

THE CROWD—ANOTHER MEETING.

The throng was so great that many were unable to gain admittance in the Hall, so that another meeting was organized outside the building, at which several addresses were made, and great enthusiasm prevailed.

Academy of Music.

BELLINI's favorite opera of "Norma" was given on Wednesday night to a fair house, considering the weather. The only novelties in the cast were Miss HENRIETTA BEHRENS, who made her début as Adalgisa, and Signor COLLETTI, who sustained the rôle of Orovist. Miss BEHRENS is well known to our concert-goers. She has grown up in our midst, and, by untiring industry and unflagging ambition, has won a place in the public esteem. There is a great difference, however, between singing in a concert-room and performing the same agreeable operation on the stage. The additional effort required for the latter arena developes defects which might otherwise remain unnoticed. Many charming vocalists have utterly failed when they essayed the task of imparting musical truth on the large scale required on the lyric stage. Miss BEHRENS was not so unfortunate. She was warmly encouraged by the audience, and received the honor of a call. She has the right to consider her début a success, and we certainly shall not dim the lustre of the occasion by any dispute on the subject. We are sure, however, that Miss BEHRENS can do better than she did as Adalgisa, and we trust to her ambition to profit by the opportunity she now enjoys of correcting many little defects. Foremost amongst them is a very unpleasant tendency to sing nasally,—a blemish so fatal that if it be not at once corrected it will destroy her prospects forever. Her voice is not powerful, and all the nasalities in the world will not add to its strength. Miss BEHRENS appears also to have studied vocal elegancies and embellishment rather than the equalization of the registers. She comes out strong in some of her notes, and is disgraceefully tranquil in others. All these things can be remedied with proper effort, and as we said before we trust Miss BEHRENS will profit by her present opportunity.

COLLETTI was mild and the audience resigned. LA GRANGE was superb. We doubt if she has ever sung better than in the two first acts of this opera.

Last night VERDI's "Il Trovatore" was again repeated, and as usual attracted a brilliant audience. Signor BRIGNOLI returned to his old rôle of Maurice, and for the first time lately sang above a whisper. Mme. LA GRANGE was, of course, admirable. When is this infallible artist otherwise? Mme. D'ORNY undertook the arduous rôle of the gipsy Azucena, for the first time, and making allowance for the necessary drawbacks—such as nervousness, insufficient study, &c., was acceptable. We have to suffer a great deal for this opera, especially in a comic point of view. A little more or less can't make any difference.

To-night (Saturday) WEBER's romantic of opera of "Der Freischutz" will be given in German, Mme. LA GRANGE and Mme. LUCHSENIUS in the principal rôles. This opera has been carefully rehearsed, and will, we expect, be given in a very satisfactory way. A new incantation scene has been painted by Signor ALLEGRI. Altogether the programme is greatly attractive.

Signora VESTVALI, (who has returned from Mexico,) has been engaged, and will appear on Monday next, as Arsace, in "Semeramide".

NEW-YORK CITY.

Colored School Fair.

The pupils of the Colored Girl's Grammar School, No. 1, in Mulberry-street, near Grand, gave a public reception yesterday, which was largely attended by strangers in town to attend the anniversaries. The new organ of the school was used under the direction of Professor OVINGTON, and some very fine solos, duetos and choruses were given by the girls. A large collection of needlework, artificial flowers, and painting were collected on the tables in the different rooms. Pertinent addresses were made by Messrs. RANDALL, MCELLIGOTT and others. The reception was followed by a fair in the evening, for the sale of fancy articles, the proceeds to be applied to the purchase of the organ spoken of above. The Fair will be continued from 10 o'clock A. M., this day and evening, and on Monday next from 3 P. M., closing with a concert in the evening, at which the children of the Colored Orphan Asylum will be present.

Effects of the Gale.

The gale from the northeast of the past day or two was very severe on the sound, so much so, that the steamers of the Boston lines, which left here on Thursday evening last, came to anchor in Cow Bay, near Sands' Point, where they remained till 8 o'clock next morning. Farms for Sale in Northwestern Connecticut.—A Farm, with furnished country house, situated in Plymouth two and a half miles from the depôt, and four miles from Lanesville. The farm contains nearly 100 acres, in about equal portions of woodland, upland and meadow, the main season of the mountain ridge running through the farm. The house was thoroughly built for the present owner, from the designs of Mr. R. G. Cabot, of Boston, and contains 11 rooms besides bath-room, etc. It is situated on an eminence commanding a fine view of the Berkshire valley and the Taconic and Hoosac ranges, including the highest mountain in the State. A stable, ice-house and other conveniences are attached to this part of the estate. The farm-house and barn are new and convenient. The wood is of the primitive growth, and the meadows yield large crops of hay without cultivation. This place offers the advantages of a most agreeable and healthy situation, with good bathing, boating, fishing and shooting upon the premises. The house is ready for immediate occupancy, being completely furnished and supplied with wood and ice. For further particulars apply to O. W. HOLMES, Boston, or Hon. F. H. KELLOGG, Plymouth.

Editor's Certificate.—ANOTHER CURE BY OXYGENATED BITTERS.—Southgoton, Vt., Nov. 12, 1854.—Gentlemen: I suffered for about a year previous to last Spring, from a derangement of the action of the bowels which, like many others similarly afflicted, I supposed to be an organic disease, and having seen the Oxygenated Bitters highly recommended for use in such cases, I procured and used a single bottle, with entire success.

The disagreeable symptoms speedily disappeared, and I have never, except in one or two instances, easily accounted for, had any recurrence of them, when they were easily removed by a single dose of the Bitters.

Being really of opinion that this medicine is of unquestionable value as a cure for Dyspepsia, (in which opinion I am happy to know that I agree with many intelligent physicians,) I have no hesitation in permitting this certificate to be used in any way that will promote its more general use. STANBURY.

Redding's Russia Salve.—No remedy of its class has ever been offered to the public, the acknowledged virtues of which can be compared to that of the RUSSIA SALVE. Innocuous and simple in its action and effect, it is efficacious in healing, removing morbid matter, cleansing diseased parts, dispersing tumors and swellings, softening stiff and contracted joints, while in skin diseases it expels through the pores of the flesh, the diseased matter which constitutes the cutaneous affections. For every purpose for which a salve can be used, this article has become the staple demand, and is now known as such in almost every town and village in the United States, and the knowledge of its virtues is extending itself to other countries. In a word, the RUSSIA SALVE has already obtained to a world-wide celebrity, and is destined to become an article of universal, constant, and permanent demand. Its great and increasing reputation is the silent and necessary result of its intrinsic merit.—Boston Journal.

WHILEF ROLLO;
OR,
THE SCOTTISH MUSKETEERS.

BY CAPT. JAMES GRANT,
Author of "Frank Hilton," or The Queen's Own," "The Yellow Frigate, or The Two Sisters," &c.
Price, 50 cents.

This is an exceedingly clever book, by a comparatively new writer, Capt. Grant, the Author of "Frank Hilton; or, The Queen's Own," a romance of no common merit. The period and incidents of the tale comprise that portion of history prior to the glorious advent of the great Gustavus Adolphus. The hero is a gallant soldier of fortune, who, while fighting the battles of his Faith, encounters a series of adventures, which are happily and naturally told, betraying an intimate knowledge of military life and the subject-matter. This book only has to be read to be appreciated, and we can conscientiously recommend it to the lovers of Light Literature.

"'Tis a tale of conspiracing, of love, and invading,
Of marches, of routes, bivouacs, outflanking;
Of batteries and breaches, howitzers and mortars,
Of posts and intrenchments—of in and out quarters;
Of advancing in line, by columns, divisions,
And fighting whole days without rum or provisions."

NEW WORK ON NEW-JERSEY HISTORY.

JUST PUBLISHED BY
D. APPLETON & CO.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE EARLY HISTORY OF PERTH AMBOY AND ADJOINING COUNTRY, WITH SKETCHES OF THE MEN AND EVENTS IN NEW-JERSEY DURING THE PROVINCIAL ERA.

BY WILLIAM A. WHITEHEAD,
Author of "East Jersey under the Proprietary Governments.

8vo., pp. 426.

From the New-York Tribune.

The contributions are of greater general interest than the title indicates. The sketches of public men, and some original documents, published now for the first time, are of much more than local interest.

From the New-York Commercial Advertiser.

The early history of Perth Amboy serves as the thread on which is strung much miscellaneous matter bearing upon the general history of the State of New-Jersey. The chapters devoted to the lives of the resident Governors, to the history of the various religious denominations, to descriptions of the Tourists of Woodbridge and Piscataway, to sketches and events during the Revolution, and to miscellaneous topics, are replete with entertaining information.

From the Newark Mercury.

The work is finely issued with maps and engravings, and ought to be in the possession of every Jerseyman. It covers a period of great interest, and the perusal of the entire work will add much to our knowledge of the Colonial period.

From the Newark Daily Advertiser.

The State owes to Mr. Whitehead an ample debt of gratitude. He is elaborating the stones and pillars, which are destined to support the historical superstructure which others may hereafter shape and adorn, but which he, and such collectors as he, have alone made it possible to complete with the ingredients of truth.

NEW-YORK LEDGER.—During a stay of about three minutes which we made at Mr. Hawks' Library Depôt, on the Exchange, on Saturday, we heard the following: "New-York Ledger." "Got the Ledger?" "I want the last four Ledgers." "Ledger." "New-York Ledger." "Got the Ledger of May 3 and 10?" "I want to get the Flag of—no, I don't mean the Flag, I mean the New-York Ledger—I would'nt give two cents for a cart-load of Flags." "I want all the Ledgers that's got. The Summer Story is—" "Two of the last Ledger." "Ledger?" "Have you got the Ledgers with the Gun Shop in?" A little over one-half of those who called, we noticed, took the Ledger, and paid down the change without saying anything. A great paper that Ledger.

"The best Sporting Novel ever written."—N. Y. Times.

NEARLY READY:

MR. SPONGE'S SPORTING TOUR.

EDITED BY FRANK FORESTER.

With six Colored Steel Illustrations, by John Leech.
In One Elegant Crown Octavo Vol., neatly bound in Muslin Gilt.
PRICE $1 50.

The above delicious feast of wit, fun, satire and rollicking adventure, is nearly ready. Since Dickens twenty years ago electrified the world with his "Pickwick Papers," there has been no work like the adventures of SOPHY SPONGE. The author has in a truly original manner made a sporting man the chief actor in a series of scenes unrivaled for their perfect accuracy, vividness of description, keenness of observation, and minuteness of detail. The characters are drawn by a master hand, and are perfectly original—not mere copies, exaggerations or alterations from other novels, but pictures from human life as vivid as Cervantes or Dickens ever drew. The author has, with wonderful skill, given living portraits of the most striking classes in modern society. The Jawleyfords, the Scattercashes, Crawdays, Springwaits, and indeed the whole dramatis personæ of this fascinating work have a freshness about them which makes an distinct an impression upon the reader as though he had personally known them. The greatest charm in the narrative is, perhaps, Mr. Sponge's courtship of the beautiful and brave Lucy Glitters, one of the most delightful of heroines since the creation of Di Vernon by the Wizard of the North.

Read the following description

From Frank Forrester's Introduction.

Both the pictures and portraits will be found equally true and life-like as they are telling and entertaining, and in both respects equally appreciable by the fair city lady and her lady-like exquisite, and by the Di Vernon Amazon, and the veriest Nimrod of the day.

The ball-room and the club-room of the fashionable watering-place, the manœuvring mammas and the husband-hunting mademoiselles are as pleasingly put on the canvas, and far more frequently, and I dare say as humorously, as the hunt and the covertside, the jolly English yeoman, and the soundedly English horse-dealer, the blossom-nosed, fox-hunting parson, and the rude, roaring, rolstering, fox-hunting peer, the field-huntsman and the fancy-huntsman, the seedy screw and the speedthrift hackney, with his crew of third-rate, rapscallion swells, dramatic, or lastly as the matchless Sponge himself, for whom, in spite of his sponging and screwing, his sponging of amphitryons with whom one may dine to-day, his circumventing of mobs and flats off whom one may hope to dine to-morrow, and his attempts at surrounding heiresses, with whom one may hope to wed some day or other, we cannot but confess a sneaking liking.

By W. H. ROSSER.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

From the New-York Tribune.

Boone certainly deserves to be ranked with a class of "representative men."—a class especially significant in American history. His story is well told in this volume, and will be read with intense interest by all who love to trace the steps by which the Western wilderness had been won to civilization.

"It will be a popular work, and, at the same time, truly deserving of its popularity. I put it among the fireside books of our country."—T. Rensayn Beck.

From the Philadelphia News.

It is really a remarkable volume—more like a romance than a history. The author presents us a mass of materials almost sufficient in importance and interest for a heroic poem.

From the Rock River Democrat.

It is a work that cannot fail to interest every one who delights in reading of the hardships and hair-breadth escapes of the early pioneers of the Great West.

From the New-York Evening Mirror.

Daniel Boone was not merely a bold hunter, but a noble man, inspired by a lofty purpose—that of opening the Great West, with its boundless resources, to the progress of the Anglo-American race, pointing out the path of empire, and smoothing the obstacles to its incipient tread. The work does ample justice to his memory, and is written in a style entirely worthy of the subject.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

It seems to present all that is reliable in our records of the Pioneer of Kentucky, and in a style quite characteristic of the author; always rapid and lively; often graphic and sparkling. The incidents of frontier life which it portrays are exciting, and heighten the grateful contrasts of the scenes of peace and refinement which are here and there so gracefully introduced. We commend this book to the lovers of our early history, as well as the general reader.

PLU-RI-BUS-TAH,
A SONG THAT'S BY NO AUTHOR.
12mo, cloth; 154 illustrations; $1.

[From the New-York Evening Mirror.

Give ear, O earth! Donsticks is a poet. Deuteronomy has immortalized himself; he has written an Epic that will convulse the world with laughter—an Epic full of truth, wit, sarcasm, humor and history; an Epic longer than "Hiawatha," and ten times as funny; an Epic illustrated by McLenan, whose pictures, scattered over every page of "Plu-ri-bus-tah," are sufficient to tickle the ribs of Death, and wrathe a grin on the pale face of Melancholy from ear to ear. "Plu-ri-bus-tah" is a remarkable, side-splitting book.

From the Cincinnati Times.

If Hiawatha will make the heart with its tender strains, "Plu-ri-bus-tah" will shake the sides with merriment; and while one may produce tears of sympathy, the other must cause an immoderate shedding of tears of joy. We have enjoyed the pleasure of perusing the proof-sheets of Donsticks' new work, and we must pronounce

Mr. Lovejoy has not been arrested, and we are informed will not be. So his "Poor Folks' Court" will lose to some that belongs to it. The offices of Mr. Osborn and Mr. Leverich are in the same building, in Elizabeth-street.

The friends of the Chief deny, to-day, the version of the story. They say there is not a word of truth in it. The Chief, they say, had been Leverich's only friend and protector. But long ago he proved ungrateful, and unworthy of the care bestowed on him. For his sake, they say, the Chief had arrested Mr. Carson, and he had been expecting some violence in retaliation. Yesterday morning, about 10½ o'clock, Carson left his office, and was walking up Elizabeth-street quietly, Leverich approaching him from behind, patted him on the shoulder, saying, "Carson, what did you insult my wife for?" Carson replied, "What do you talk such nonsense to me for? You know better yourself, and you had better go about your business." As Carson turned to go on his way, Leverich struck him back of the ear a powerful blow. Carson turned and clenched him, and in an instant Leverich struck him on the head with the butt end of a cowhide. Carson seized the cowhide and wound the smaller portion of it around his hand, and holding both the cowhide and Leverich fast, looking his assailant full in the face, said, "Well, have you got through with the business you intended?" to which Leverich said, "Yes." Carson then said, "I don't want to hurt you, nor have anything to do with you;" and giving him a shove, said, "Now, take your cowhide and go about better business." And Leverich—says our informant—went about the "better business" of forestalling public opinion and writing up juicy accounts of the affair for the evening papers. Take the story either way, and it is disgraceful to our time and our City.

THE COW-SKINNING AFFAIR IN SPRING-STREET.

Messrs. Lynter and Walters, who were out on bail for an assault with a cow skin and pistol upon James L. Smith, Editor of the Sunday Courier, in Spring-street, on Monday last, appeared in the Court of Special Sessions with their counsel, A. A. Phillips, Esq.

The latter stated to Recorder Smith that his clients had been notified to appear that day (Friday) and plead to the charge, but that through some misapprehension the complainant (as he was informed) had not been notified. He desired, on the part of Lynter and Walters, to enter a plea of guilty, and crave time of the Court to prepare and put into the case affidavits in mitigation of punishment.

The plea was received, and an order made that the affidavits should be returned to the Recorder's office on the morning of Monday next.

The Clerk was also directed to notify the complainant, so that he might prepare any counter affidavits he might think proper. The final disposition of the affair will, therefore, be made at the next Special Sessions on Tuesday.

There was something said relative to a cross action by one of the defendants against a brother of the editor of the Courier; but the reporters were made so clumsy that probably that particular phase of the affair will not be adjudicated upon immediately.

Her Wings Clipped.

The steamship Ocean Bird, which formerly plied between this City and Havana, was yesterday taken from her berth, at the foot of North Moore-street, N. R., where she has been laying for the last two months or more, to the vicinity of Corlaer's Hook, E. R., to receive coal. Her present destination has not transpired. She is considered the fleetest vessel of her kind, and is so much admired by those who know her, that a few days ago some parties attempted, by the aid of a steam-tug, to elope with her, but after proceeding about a mile were pursued, and—as such naughty persons should be—brought back. She has since that time been under the special protection and care of Policeman.

Sam Patch Redivivus.

A rat leaped from the sill of a sixth-story window in the TRIBUNE Office, yesterday, and landed safe on the sidewalk some seventeen feet to the east of the meridian on which he started. Fairly grounded, he took an observation, and plunged into a barber's shop for redress.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—In their nature are similar to the vegetables used by man for food. They are subject to the same digestion in passing from the stomach to the intestines. Incorporated into the circulation, they impart to the blood new vitality, which occasions it to throw out any impurities into the bowels, which organ expels them. How simple, yet how wise, are all the laws of our being! Acting in union with these laws, a few grains of vegetable extract remove the most terrible and fatal maladies, curing alike the most subtle virus of the pale humanoche, and in so mild a manner that they scarcely give pain and pleasure.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are sold at 25 cents per box, at No. 48 Canal-st., Brandreth Buildings; No. 241 Hudson-st.; and No. 206 Bowery.

Also, by Mrs. HAYES, No 178 Fulton-st., Brooklyn.

By T. W. DYOTT & SONS, Philadelphia; and by all respectable druggists and medicine-venders in the Union.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION IN JUNE.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer, May 7.

THE BURNET HOUSE.—For the edification of croakers abroad, who doubt the capacity of our city for entertaining delegates and visitors on the occasion of the approaching National Democratic Convention, we would state that Mr. A. B. COLEMAN, of the Burnet House, is making preparations for the reception of five thousand guests. This may seem almost incredible, but nevertheless it is true. Mr. COLEMAN has already received letters asking for rooms for about two thousand persons, and he has made extensive arrangements to accommodate comfortably the above number.

FRIDAY, May 9—P. M.

The Stock Market to-day was irregular in tone, and closed in the afternoon dull and uninteresting. Prices were fairly supported at the early meeting of the Brokers, and a fair amount of business done in the prominent Road Stocks, at 57 for Erie, 89⅝ for Reading, and 91¼ for New-York Central; the Western Stocks in like proportion, as compared with Thursday's market. There was a good demand also for Illinois Centrals at 87 seller 90; 87¾ cash for the Construction Bonds, and 92¾ for the Freelands, with privilege. Cleveland and Toledo shares ranged 74⅞@⅞ cash; 75⅞@⅞ on buyer's option. At the Second Board buyers of Stocks generally manifested considerable indifference, and although sales were not freely pressed, the market left off weak. The Foreign news was scarcely referred to in Stock circles, though considered favorable both to Cotton and Breadstuffs. There was an active inquiry for Money among some of the Stock dealers at the close of the day, though this was by no means general. Discounts at Bank ruled somewhat irregular this week. One or two of the prominent mercantile Banks, holding the accounts of the New-York country Banks, have been heavily drawn upon by their interior correspondents, and in turn are unable for the moment to accommodate all their customers to the extent they were discounting some weeks ago. The offerings at the other large Banks are for the most part moderate. We hear of neither pressure nor want of promptness among the merchants.

The business in Foreign Exchange turns out light for the Ericsson and North Star, which sail to-morrow, the first for Liverpool and the other for Southampton and Bremen. There were no important engagements of Specie in either, up to the close of Change hour. Bills on London are firm at 109⅝@110; Paris, 5.17½@5.16¼. The settlements making with the Bankers on credits used in India and China, as well as in Europe, early in the season, are just now quite heavy, and absorb a large amount of Exchange.

The Sub-Treasury paid out, to-day, $319,864, against $101,826 received. The regular balance is reduced this afternoon to $9,444,598. There was also paid out on the checks of Disbursing Officers, $95,581.

The Collins Steamship Company have re-elected their old officers, JAMES BROWN, President, E. K. COLLINS, STEWART BROWN, JAMES M. BROWN, and GEORGE F. ALLEN, Directors, and WILLIAM L. YOULE, Secretary.

The Dry Goods Import for the week is $1,066,847, against $532,426 the corresponding week last year. The following is the summary:

The renewal of the Debt falling due last December cost the Company $91,840, of which $88,000 was added to the cost of the Road by an increased issue of Bonds. The property appears to have been generally administered to the greatest possible advantage, and its balance sheet for the year stated in the least encouraging light.
